

Kathryn M. Huff is a licensed attorney and mediator for the Appellate Court of Maryland's ADR Division where she mediates civil appellate cases. Prior to joining the ADR Division, Katie was a private family law attorney in Baltimore City. She also volunteered as a facilitator for domestic settlement conferences in the Circuit Court for Baltimore City. Prior to private practice, Katie clerked for the Honorable Stephen H. Kehoe in Talbot County.

Katie received her Bachelor's Degree in Spanish and Political Science from Loyola University Maryland in 2012. She earned her J.D. from the University of Baltimore School of Law in 2015, where she was a law scholar and member of the Law Review. In law school, Katie was a Rule 16 student attorney in the Mediation Clinic for Families for a full year. In that capacity, she conducted same-day mediations in the Circuit Court for Baltimore City and represented clients in family law matters and private mediations.
